
Origins of Autumn

For the majority of the populance, September twenty-second has no more meaning than the day which heralds the beginning of autumn. It signals that time of year when the trees begin to turn beautiful colors; all those oranges, yellows, and reds becoming a maize of natural art. Farmers are busy with the harvesting of their many crops, children have returned to their classrooms, many are preparing for the cooler weather which is soon to arrive.

Some Christians may take a pause to celebrate the day they call Michaelmas. The day shall probably end with the eating of the customary goose.

For the majority of the populance, at least in the English speaking world, the first day of autumn is over without having been cherished, or held in awe. It has been no different than any other regular day; gone and forgotten.

What does this day represent to Pagans and Wiccans alike? Although not a major Sabbat, the Autumn Equinox is to be found on the calendar wheel. It is a time for thanking the gods for bountiful crops.

We are happy to see the mighty cycle of nature move ever forward. Our plentiful fields will soon lie barren, in a dormant state to provide rest, so that they may once again provide substance for all living creatures.

On the Autumn Equinox, as is proper, Pagans and Wiccans may be found celebrating the everflowing cycle of Nature. We offer heart-felt thanks for the bounty we have received, secure in our knowledge that as we need the Goddess and her consort, so too do they need us.

May we never allow our year to become so routine that we fail to notice the beauty around us and to enjoy the gift of Nature.

Pyramids Part II

by Ron

In the second part of my pyramid article, I will discuss the use of the energies of the pyramid.

First, let's talk about what we can do with plants in a pyramid. Most plants do rather well. They grow at an accelerated rate and are usually stronger. Oh, before I forget, insects don't care for pyramid energies, so, though pollenation might be a problem, plant-eating insects won't be.

Animals are fond of the pyramid. Most like to rest inside one and they will find a corner and make themselves comfortable. They become healthier and more energetic with the help of the pyramid.

Dehydrating is done faster in a pyramid. Meats and vegetables and fruits are more palatable when dehydrated in a pyramid.

Hyperactive children are calmed to such an extent that when done regularly, certain children can be taken off medicine for short periods.

Children also seem to be able to concentrate better, so studying in a pyramid will mean better grades.

Meditation is said to be enhanced by the pyramids energies. Some say they feel a dropping away of tensions and become relaxed, even so far as to say they feel euphoric.

Sleeping in a pyramid brings on a feeling of new energy and youthful health. Of course, the pyramid itself would have to be of a large base or hung over the bed.

Storage of the energies can be done in two ways, in water or aluminum. The easiest way is in water, it absorbs the energy faster and can be absorbed into the system by drinking it. On the other hand, a piece of aluminum can be carried on the body for periods of time. With several pieces you can alternate the pieces and always have pyramid energy with you.

If pyramids are of interest to you, and you wish to do further reading, may I suggest the following:

Words of Wicca

by Cerridwen

Although not a column to capture the imagination, the definations contained herein are designed to improve your communication skills. Pagan culture through the ages has developed a vocabulary which is still much used by modern Pagans.

Like a dictionary, each issue will have its words in alphabetical order. However, words from each letter group may be found in each issue.

This will be a column to save for future reference.

AKASHA, AKASHIC PRINCIPLE: The spiritual ether; the omnipresent fifth occult element which embraces the other four - earth, air, fire and water - and from which they stem.

AKASHIC RECORDS: The traces or 'recordings' left in the Akashic Principle by every event. Advanced occultists aquire the art of retrieving these events (e.g., details of past incarnations of themselves or others) b 'reading' the Akashic records.

BELL: A ritual tool used to banish negative entities from a magick circle; also used to bring in, or invoke, good entities.

BOON: A request; favor. In Wicca, asked by an individual at a Full Moon ritual or sabbat ritual, of the High Priestess who is representing the Goddess.

CAULDRON: Female in nature, it represents the womb of Nature from which all things are born. A symbol of Cerridwen, the cauldron is represented on the Alter by the Chalice. It is used in magickal rites to represent the above mentioned womb of Nature.

CHANT: A series of words, oftentimes in poetical form, repeated over and over to induce an excited state thereby causing the generation of psychic power.

DEOSIL: Turning clockwise; sunwise.

DIVINATION: The art of predicting the past, present and/or future.

ELF: A Scandinavian fairy; they are supernatural beings who delight in mischief. Present-day Danes believe the elves were rebel angels who were cast out of heaven. Others believe the elves sprang from the children of Adam and Lilith.

FAIRY: Generally English, Scottish and Irish in origin, they are benevolent little people who help mortals with their work, bring gifts, and preserve an atmosphere of happiness. They are often called "The Wee Folk" or "The Little People" and are attractive in appearance as opposed to brownies. If they are angered, the fairies will not hesitate to punish. They have been known to kidnap children.

GEOMANCY: An occult practice which began with tracing figures in the ground and later was extended to include random dots made with a pencil. These were interpreted according to accepted designs, a predecessor of modern doodles.

HEATHEN: One who lives on the heaths (waste land; moors); very possibly a Pagan.

I CHING: A complex method of foretelling the future originated by the ancient Chinese and depending upon the interpretation of marked sticks or coins which are cast by the person wishing information. Since the person doing the tossing has great personal control over amount of force with which they are thrown, this method of telling fortunes is regarded as quite an accurate personal reflection.

KARMA: The word itself means "action" and the doctrine taught is that for every action there is a reaction: that what we choose to do to ourselves and others will produce a reaction either good or bad depending on the action that was taken and this reaction may not necessarily take place in this lifetime.

LEVITATION: The act of rising from the ground and floating through the air without mechanical aids. May apply to humans, animals and inanaimate objects, the latter of which are caused to levitate by a force known as psychokinesis.

MAGIC: Slight-ofhand.

MAGICK: The ancient lore of the Watchers, comprising the knowledge of certain powers resident within the deep mind of man, by means of which natural law can be affected without using generally recognized channels of communication. It is parapsychic manipulation.

NEOPHYTE: A novice or apprentice.

OCCULT: From a Latin derivation of concealed or to cover over; the hidden, secret, esoteric, and mysterious arts which are beyond most human understanding. Certain mystic arts such as divination, astrology, alchemy, magick, etc., involve forces or powers which cause the occult to take place.

PAGAN: Originally one who resides in the country. A Pagan is not necessarily a Wiccan (Witch), But a Wiccan is always a Pagan. A Pagan worships and communicates with Nature.

PYRAMIDOLOGY: The study of pyramids; their construction, history and uses.

RITUAL: Ritual is to posture and movement what prayer, incantations and chants are to speech. It is perscribed and precise movements as a part of ceremony. Especially with the practice of magick and most orthodox religions, great importance is attached in performing the necessary steps perfectly. The word is frequently used synonymously with ceremony, but properly, ritual is a series of steps which comprise a ceremony. Thus, a rite is one ritual step.

SCRYING: To divine by peering into a mirror, bowl of water, or a crystal.

TELEKINESES: Movement of an object without visible means - not necessarily psychokineses.

TENET: An opinion, dogma, or principal which a person holds as true.

THEOLOGIAN: One who is a master of theology (religion).

UNIVERSAL MIND: The creative force; cosmic consciousness; godhead; neither femine nor masculine, but the total of both genders.

WARLOCK: A term that most Christians believe means a male Witch. No Pagan and certainly no male Witch, would ever refer to himself as a warlock. This word warlock literally means an oathbreaker, or breaker of trust.

WICCA: An Anglo-Saxon word meaning wise. A member of Wicca is a wise-one; a member of the Old Religion; a Witch.

LIBRA- Sept. 23 to Oct 22
Symbolized by the scales
Colors: Pale or mint green
Metal: Copper
Flowers: Hydrangeas or Cosmos
Numbers: 6, 4 and 9
Ruling Planet: Venus
Parts of body ruled: Kidneys & ovaries
Nature: Cardinal, airy, fruitful & masculine

You have been called indecisive because in seeking real truth you weigh all the possibilities. In taking the time to make the right decision, the opportunity to make the decision may pass by.

You are an extremely good listener. This, combined with your ability to see all possibilities and sides, makes you a good mediator. You are great at solving other people's problems.

You are intellectual & musically or artistically inclined. Logic rather than emotions rule your decisions.

Although you are often characterized as easy-going, charming, reasonable, calm, cheerful and logical, this is you only half the time. Because your scales can tip the other way, you ca be annoying, stubborn, argumentative, restless, depressed, & confused.

Appearance-wise, the body of a Libra is usually well-formed with a tendency to overweight in middle age which often settles on hips or thighs.

The face is usually oval, with regular features. The eyes are a light color. The nose is either Grecian or slightly upturned, giving a pixie-like appearance. The mouth is small and bow-shaped. Dimples are a common characteristic and if they can't be found on the face, they are likely to be found on knees.

Libra hair is smooth & often has soft curves. The color varies from brown to black.

Their voices are soft & clear. Seldom will you hear a Librian voice at a bellowing pitch.

With the Sun in its detriment in Libra, energy is drained away from you. Although your sign is called "Lazy Libra", you have your periods of extreme energy but those are balanced with periods when even a bulldozer couldn't move you.

Harmony and balance are keywords where your health is concerned. A well-balanced diet is a necessity. Overindulgence in eating sweet foods can lead not only to obesity but stomach disorders and mottled skin. Overindulgence in alcohol can cause serious kidney and bladder disturbances. Overly spiced foods and extremes in heat and cold also affect your kidneys.

As an air sign, you can suffer from nervous tension caused by unharmonious surroundings. Pressures of any kind can lead to migraine headaches.

Because it is hard for you to acquire harmony of mind and emotions oftentimes you may suffer from ulcers & periods of depression. Giving in to depression can cause itching of the skin & even boils.

The bottom line to all this is the need to maintain proper diet, harmonious surroundings, and get plenty of fresh air, exercise and rest.

In love, many astrologers have called you the most often married sign of the zodiac while others have called you fickle.

Fickle has nothing to do with the fact you are constantly seeking harmony & you can be an idealist where a mate is concerned. When your loved one no longer fits your ideal, causing you disharmony, you go looking elsewhere.

Libras are gentle, tender, romantic lovers. However, once the conquest is made, you may not be so romantically demonstrative and not as passionate. Though this may be the case, you are supportive of the others efforts and will verbally share your feelings. In fact, in your mind, the two of you become as one.

As with everything else, you are able to maintain a balance whether rich or poor as long as you are under no pressure.

If you have money, you can be self-indulgent as you love beautiful things whether it's clothing, art, music, etc. Literature is highly valued and you are apt to purchase more books for that large library most Libras have.

You can be a soft touch where money is concerned but you have your economic periods also.

All in all, with either the Sun or Ascendant in Libra, you are generally a beneficient person who is rarely disposed to evil or selfishness.

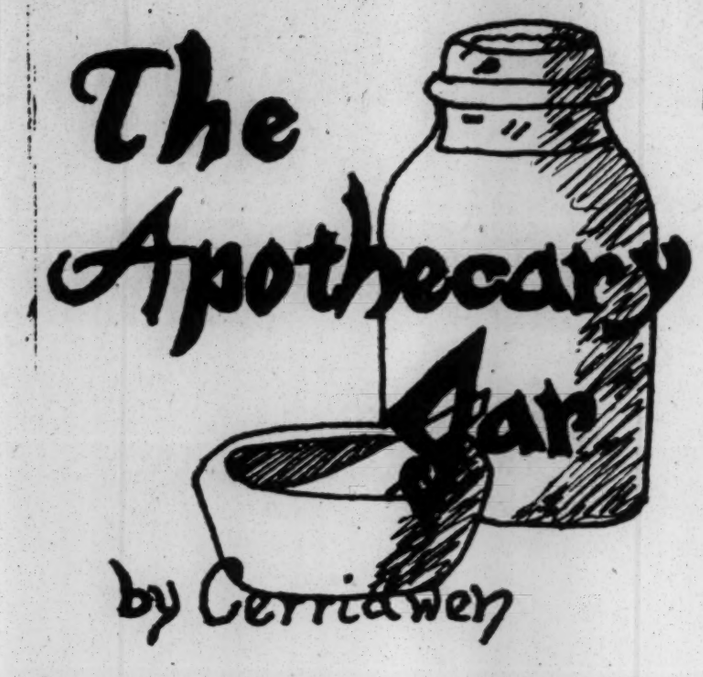
Answers to the Mythological Wordsearch Puzzle



As promised in the Lammas issue, I shall discuss some of the herbs which were used by our forefathers to treat a couple of the more common ailments.

Although not necessarily a complete listing of associated herbs, enough are mentioned to satisfy most casual herbalists.

I imagine the most common complaint, from the beginning of time, is the headache. A number of herbs are said to have a beneficial effect. Among the 'headache' herbs are:

1) BLUE VIOLET (Viola Culata), in combination with nerveroot, scullcap or black cohosh, made into an infusion.
2) CATNIP (Nepeta Cataria) when given as a high enema infusion, is reported to relieve hysterical headaches.
3) COLTSFOOT (Tussilago Farfara) is good for nasal obstruction and related headache when the powdered leaves are snuffed up the nostrils.
4) PEPPERMINT (Mentha Piperita) may be taken as a strong-as-you-like-it infusion tea and as a cooling poultice for the forehead.
5) RHUBARB (Rheum Palmatum) root decoction is said to aid headaches.
6) RUE (Ruta Graveolens) will relieve pain in the head if an infusion of one tablespoon of the whole plant, steeped in one pint of boiling water for half an hour, is drunk warm every two hours.
7) SWEET BALM (Melissa Officinalis); whole herb and flower hot infusion.
8) THYME (Thymus Vulgaris); cool infusion of whole plant.
9) VERVAIN, BLUE (Verbena Hastata); warm infusion every hour.
10) WOOD BETONY (Betonica Officinalis); infusion of leaves is considered unsurpassed for headache when combined with one part scullcap and one part calamus root. (Use two parts Wood Betony.)
11) THISTLE, BLESSED (Lawsonia Inermis); two ounces of the dried herb simmered in a quart of water for two hours, drunk twice a day, is reputed very helpful for chronic headaches.

Other herbs which are believed to relieve the all to common headache are: Elder, Marjoram, Calamint, Pennyroyal, Fringe Tree, Red Root, Mountain Balm, Yerba Santa, Camomile, and Tansy.

Moving to the other end of the body, no one but a sufferer of gout would know what pain in the toe and feet this malady really is. Since gout is always accompanied by uremic poisoning of the blood, it is wise to see your physician should you suspect yourself of having gout.

The following herbs were among those used years ago, before modern medicine came upon the scene.

1) BIRCH (Betula Lenta); make an infusion or decoction of the inner bark and small twigs and drink freely.
2) BUCKTHORN BARK (Rhamnus Frangula); drink a cool decoction of bark and fruit.
3) BURDOCK (Arctium Lappa); freely drink a decoction of the root, seed, and leaves.
4) MUGWORT (Artemisia Vulgaris); use a poultice (chickweed and slippery elm), then bathe the affected area for some time with a mugwort infusion.
5) PENNYROYAL (Hedeoma Pulegiodes); take a hot infusion of the whole plant (one cup at bedtime).
6) RUE (Ruta Graveolens); an infusion of the whole herb (Do Not Boil Rue), if drunk a large swallow at a time, and used in conjunction with a rue poultice, is said to be excellent.
7) SARSAPARILLA (Smilax Officinalis); the root should be made into an infusion and drunk in large quanities.
8) WOOD BETONY (Betonica Officinalis); the same formula is used for the gout as is used for a headache.

Several other herbs which have been used to relieve the gout are: Blue Violet, Broom, Ginger, Plantain, and Balm of Gilead Bark.

I make no claims as to the effectiveness of these herbs. Your comments are welcome. Until next time...

CLOSE ENCOUNTERS OF A THIRD KIND - SPECIAL EDITION

For those of you who enjoyed the original CLOSE ENCOUNTERS the six minutes of changes will be no great thrill.

In addition to finding the airplanes from the 40's, they find a ship in the desert and it's no camel!

The other big addition is the inside shots of the mother ship once Richard Dreyfuss has entered it. Although the photograhy is extraordinary, the viewer is let down with the lack of alien contact or appearance.

The one cut they made that I felt was poor judgment was the very humorous scene where Dreyfuss digs up the shrubbery and throws the dirt and mud through the kitchen window to make the sculpture of his vision. While to some it would seem non-essential, I found it very comical and quite human!

If you expect some spectacular changes, save your money. It's the same CLOSE ENCOUNTERS with a few minor changes.

THE DEAD ZONE by Stephen King

From the man who wrote CARRIE, SALEM'S LOT, THE SHINING and THE STAND comes another supernatural thriller.

THE DEAD ZONE has King's usual thread of reality and plausability running through it. The reader will find it hard to put down this first-rate suspense novel.

The story of a man who survives a horrible car accident and a 4½ year coma to find his whole world changed, both the outside world and the one inside.

This novel would make a fantastic movie, provided the story line was left in tact.

Congratulations, Stephen King! We await your next masterpiece of horror anxiously.

"THE EMPIRE STRIKES BACK"

Although the photography and special effects were, as usual, spectacular, this second George Lucas movie was lacking something which this writer has been unable to define as of yet.

The actors and actresses did a fine job of acting and the storyline itself was not bad at all. The ending definitely does its job of making you want more and leaving you in a mild state of suspense. However, underlying it all, something was missing.

The original STAR WARS brought many movie goers back for second, third and fourth viewings. After viewing THE EMPIRE STRIKES BACK once, the second viewing was boring to this writer- a feeling not experienced with STAR WARS after four viewings.

With this undefined doubt in my mind, I would still recommend it to those who enjoyed the first movie. I look forward to the next George Lucas movie, which I understand will be called THE JEDI'S REVENGE. It's release, however, is two to three years in the future.

Editorial: Love and Concern

In this day and age when a small, lost child finds it hard to get help in finding his way home and robbers can rob a locked car in broad daylight and not even be questioned by passersby, a question comes to mind- Do we no longer care about our fellow man?

The phrase "I don't want to get involved." has almost become the motto of Americans, in particular, and the human race, in general, and it's disgusting.

Most religions, in some way, state you should treat other people as you yourself would like to be treated; or, do good and good will be returned to you many times over. Why then will so few help each other? Are all the others saying, "If I'm in trouble I expect you to walk away and ignore me."? I hardly think so.

Hypocrisy and fear have caused genuine love and concern for each other to become endangered species where feelings are the subject. Why have we allowed this to happen and when will we put a stop to it? Before it's too late I sincerely hope.

The first thing we each have to do is quit living in our own little ego-inflated world and stop copping out by thinking there's someone else to do what WE should be doing. If each one of us won't take the first step by admitting we exist in this world and doing something to show it, then who will and what will become of our world? Take the time to show you care- would it hurt so much?

A OUANGA BAG FOR HOME OR CAR PROTECTION

The word OUANGA comes from the Voodoo religion and because of this has been mistakenly equated with evil, loss and discord. Perhaps this is because there is another word in Voqdoo, WANGA, which would be pronounced almost the same and means a terrible hex, curse or spell. It is a work of black magick against an enemy. On the other hand, a OUANGA is a magickal charm of great power also termed a fetish (any Voodoo amulet or charm); gris-gris (magickal charm to ward off all forms of evil & bad luck); pouin (powerful magick spell that is extremely protective and usually very helpful whose evil counterpart is the WANGA). So as you can see the evil connotation placed on this word is done quite wrongly. In my estimation, a ouanga bag would be equated with what some term a sachet charm bag.

With the term correctly defined, I shall now set down the instructions for making one to help protect your home or car from loss or misfortune. Let me state here that if it is for your home, you should make one for each door leading to the outside. For a car, one bag, hung near the steering wheel is sufficient.

MATERIALS

1. A red sachet bag- preferably handmade but bought will do
2. A clove of garlic
3. A large piece of John the Conqueror Root- or 1 T. powdered
4. Mandrake Root- (Mayapple will do)- 1 piece or 1 tsp. powdered
5. Basil leaves or powdered- 1 tsp.
6. Bay laurel leaf or powder- 1 tsp.
7. A small magnet
8. Sea salt- 1 tsp.
9. Sandalwood oil
10. Tiger's eye stone (opt.)
11. Shark's tooth (optional)

This bag can be made on any night of the waxing Moon, Tuesday being the best.

Assemble the above ingredients on a table, somewhere where you will not be disturbed.

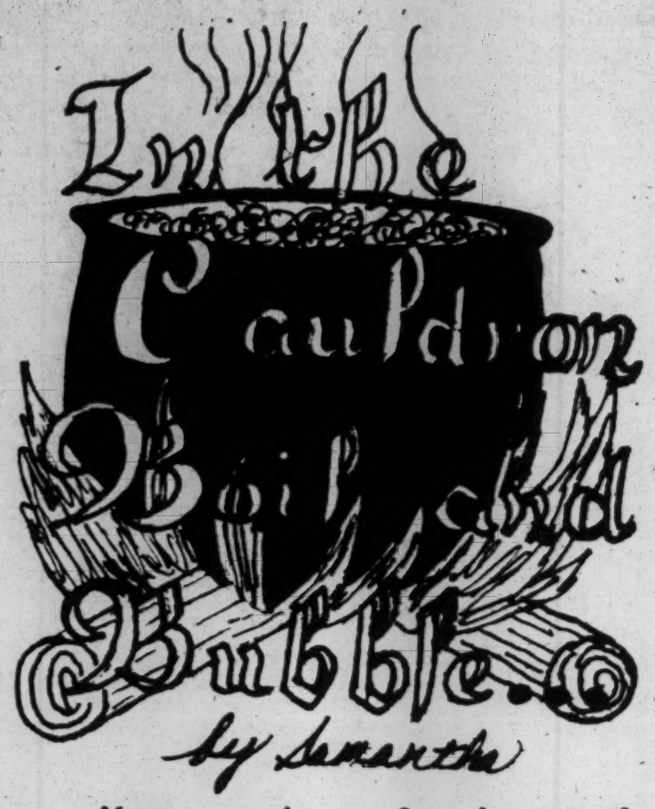
If the bag has been purchased, rather than made, it should be purified by sprinkling with a mixture of water and 3 pinches of sea salt and then passing the bag through some Sandalwood incense smoke. All the above ingredients, except the Sandalwood oil, are then placed in the bag. Close the bag & tie a knot in the drawstring. Take the bag in both hands & hold it high in front of you. In your own words invoke the protection and blessings of your deity or deities, while also drawing in energy to do the protecting. Concentrate and when you feel that a sufficient amount has been collected, place the bag on the table and seal it with three drops of Sandalwood oil on the outside.

Before the bag is hung up, you should walk clockwise around your house or car three times, carrying the bag with the idea of the protection encircling it.

These bags need to be replaced each year and the old ones totally disposed of.

From my own personal experience, these bags work. However, as with all magickal work, the success or failure depends on the operator. Therefore, I can offer no guarantee they will work for you, only a sincere wish that they do.

Blessed Be.



Many recipes for homemade wine are time-consuming and require expensive ingredients and equipment. The following recipe is neither and can be made in as small a quantity as one gallon.

For one gallon of wine you will need the following ingredients and equipment:

2 cups unsweetened Welch's grape juice (or any good quality, all-natural brand)
4 cups sugar, to be dissolved in 2 quarts boiling water
½ tsp. yeast (baker's yeast will do although there are regular wine yeasts)

A one-gallon, green glass bottle
A few 10¢ balloons

As stated above, the sugar must be dissolved in boiling water. It must be stirred constantly until it is all dissolved. Then it must be cooled until it is at least room temperature.

Next, place all the ingredients in the one-gallon bottle. Fill the bottle up the rest of the way with water and place a 10¢ balloon over the mouth of the bottle. Store for three (3) weeks in a dark, cool place. Check on it occasionally for you may need to replace the ballon.

After 3 weeks, strain the mixture and bottle for use.

Bon appetit!
